ذ

- ذ Called ذال شخذ and ذال معجمه is the ninth letter of the Arabic alphabet. Its existence in Persian, except as a substitute for د (see د), appears very doubtful. It is pronounced by the Arabs like th in the English word thou; but, in Hindūstānī, its sound is not to be distinguished from that of ز z. In denoting numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 700; and, by way of abbreviation, it is written for ذوالحجہ the last month of the Arabic lunar year.
- If ذ be the first radical of an Arabic verb, the ت in the form افتعال is changed into ذ, and either the د or ن is changed into the other of the two, which is doubled; as, from ذکر comes اذکر or اذکر.

- §. رامجانی rāmjanī (रामाजनी i. e. रामा Pleasing, and जनी Woman) A Hindū dancing-girl, a prostitute.
- s. रामचन्द्र Rāma-chandra, n. prop. Son of Dasaratha, and conqueror of Lankā or Ceylon. He was the seventh avatār; when the deity descended for the purpose of destroying Rāvaṇa, who, having obtained, for his devotion, a promise from Brahmā that he should not suffer death by any of the usual means, was become the tyrant and pest of mankind. The Devatās came in the shape of monkeys, as Rāvaṇa had gained no promise of safety from them; hence,

- Hanumāna* was Rāma's general. Rāmachandra's mother's name was Kausalyā. His younger brother Bharata was son of Kekayī, who was the cause of Rāma's going to the desert to perform devotions, on the banks of the Pampū nadī, insisting that her son should reign the fourteen years that Rāma employed in the devotion. It was while performing his devotion (or during his stay in the forests) in company with Lakṣhmaṇa (his brother by Sumitrā) that, while he was absent hunting, Rāvaṇa appeared as a beggar, and enticed away Sītā; which gave rise to the war detailed in the Rāmāyaṇa. Sītā was daughter of Rājā Janaka, who had promised to give her to any person who could break a certain bow; which was done by Rāmachandra. When in the forest, he drew a circle round Sītā, and forbid her to go beyond it, and left Lakṣhmaṇa to take care of her; but Lakṣhmaṇa, hearing some noise which alarmed him for his brother, left her to seek him: then it was that Rāvaṇa appeared and enticed her out of the circle (ganḍī), and carried her off in his flying chariot. In the air Rāvaṇa was opposed by the bird Jatāyū, whose wings he cut, and escaped. Rāmachandra reigned in Awadh (Ayodhyā), before Christ 1600. رام بھت rām-bhati, s. f. Following this advice, she remained in the kitchen of that Rājū, till it happened that a large fish, which had been presented to him, on being opened by the cook, was found to contain another fish; and, when this was opened, a child issued from its belly. This child the cook gave to Rati: and the matter being reported to the Rājū, he directed her to take care of the child and to rear it. When Kāmadeva was grown up, she made him acquainted with what Pūrvatī had told her; and advised him to kill Sambara, and to return with her to the house of Kṛishṇa and Rukmiṇī, where he was born. س. سین syen, s. m. A hawk, falcon.

ش shīn, called معجمه شین or شین منقوطه is the thirteenth letter of the Arabic and sixteenth of the Persian alphabet, corresponding nearly to श in Sanskrit. Its sound is that of the English sh; of the French ch, as in cheval; and, of the Italian sc, as in scimia. In denoting numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 300. It is used as an abbreviation for the word شمال North; and, in dates of letters, &c. for the month شعبان.

In Persian it may be used, 1. To mark the pronoun of the third person singular, in the genitive or accusative case; as, نامش His name, ثنائش His praise, گفتمش for گفتم I said to him: and, it is frequently disjoined from the noun to which it has reference; as in this line of Ghanimat, زحیرتها خرد گردید آبش His understanding was turned to water by astonishment, ازحیرتها خردش آب شد. If, moreover, it relates to the same person as the agent of the sentence, it stands for the reciprocal pronoun خود; as

نهد خور هر طرف دامی ز تارش
کران رو پرتوی گردد شکارش

The sun spreads in every direction a net made of his rays; that, by means thereof he may catch a reflected image. 2. To form the hāṣil bi-l-maṣdar, verbal noun or noun of action. In this case it is quiescent, and requires the vowel kasr to the preceding letter; as, پرسش Asking, سوزش Burning, &c.

In the conjugation of Persian verbs, to form the aorist and tenses derived from the aorist, ش preceding تن of the infinitive is changed, if it follow ا, into ر; as نگارم &c. from نگاشتن; or, if it follow any other letter, sometimes into ر, as گذرم from گذشتن; sometimes into س, as نویسم from نوشتن; and, خ of the infinitive is changed into ش, as فروختم from فروختن.

For ش is sometimes substituted چ, as پاشان for پاشان Sprinkling; sometimes س, as سارک for سارک A species of nightingale; sometimes, in the end of words, ج, as کاش for کاش Would to God! And, it may be substituted for س: as کشتی for کشتی Wrestling.

In Arabic, when a verb, the first radical letter of which is ش, appears in the form افتعال, the servile ت is sometimes though but rarely united, by idghām, with the ش; as ishshabaha for ishtabaha, He doubted.

A twig of saffron) is applied to a proud person who estimates too highly his own worth: so Mīr says,

ناز چمن و هی هی بلبل سی گو خزان هی
تهنی جو زرد بهی هی سو شاخ زعفران هی

Nāz-i-chaman wah-ī hai bulbul se, go khizān hai; tahnī jo zard bhī hai so shākh-i-za'farān hai, The parterre still displays the same coquetry towards the nightingale, although the autumn is arrived; the branches, though withered, are as proud as ever. ص sād (or, ṣwād) called صاد مہملہ and صاد غیر منقوڑہ the fourteenth letter of the Arabic alphabet, does not properly occur in the Persian language; but, in a few words it has, in modern times, been substituted for the original س to distinguish them from others of a different signification; as, in صد, originally سد One hundred; and in شست originally شست Sixty; to prevent their being confounded with سد A wall, and شست An aim. It has no corresponding letter in the Sanskrit alphabet. In Persia and Hindūstān, its pronunciation is hardly distinguishable from that of س; but, among the Arabs, its sound is stronger than the last and with a mixture of w. In the notation of numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet it represents 90. As an abbreviation it is used for صفر the name of the second month in the Arabian calendar.

It is one of the radical letters. Some Arabic words are written indifferently with ص and س; as صراط, or سراط A road. Sometimes, when quiescent in the infinitive of a verb, it is changed into ز as فز for فسد To open a vein. When Persian words containing چ are introduced into Arabic, the چ is changed into ص as چین for چین China.

ض

ضاد ḡad (or ḡwād), called ضاد معجمہ and ضاد منقوطہ the fifteenth letter of the Arabic alphabet, does not occur in Persian, nor is there any corresponding letter in Sanskrit. In Persia and Hindūstān its pronunciation is hardly distinguished from that of z; but, in Arabia it is a mixed sound of d, th, and w, only to be acquired from natives of that country. In the notation of numbers by the Arabic letters it stands for 800. It is one of the radical letters. The ḡ of Persian words, when they are introduced into Arabic, is often changed into this letter, as ذآک for ضحاک. See under ح. When three of these letters meet together, as in تقضض the darting of a hawk upon his prey, the last is changed into yi as تقضي. And in verbs of the measure افتعال the sêrvile ت after this letter is changed to ط or to ض as اضطراب or اضراب from ضرب.

- ط (ṭo'e) or Arabic ṭā, called طاي مهمله or طاي غير, the sixteenth letter of the Arabic alphabet, does not occur in pure Persian; but in compliance with Arabic orthography, it is sometimes introduced in Persian words which were originally written with ت; as, طبرزد for تبرزد, Sugar-candy; طبرخون for تبرخون, Red sanders. It has no corresponding character in Sanskrit. Its genuine sound is stronger and harsher than that of ت. As a numeral, in the numerical application of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 9: and, in almanacks it represents the sign Capricorn. When this letter is the first radical of Arabic verbs, the servile ت of the measures تفعل, تفاعل and افتعال may be changed into ط, which is joined by idghām with the ط of the root; and, if the first letter thus becomes quiescent, a hamza is prefixed; as, for طاهر ṭaḥhara اطهر iṭṭahhara.

کاف kāf, called کاف تازی or کاف عربی the twenty-second letter of the Arabic and twenty-fifth of the Persian alphabet, corresponds to क in Sanskrit. Its sound is that of the English k. To represent its Sanskrit aspirate क् (kh) in the Arabic characters, کھ is adopted. In the notation of numbers by the Arabic letters, ک stands for twenty. Its permutations are, 1st, into خ as شاماخچہ or شاماکچہ A woman's bodice: 2d, into غ as کڑگاو or نژگاو The bull of Tartary (Bos grunniens): 3d, Arabistically, into ق as مانجنیق for مانجنیک A warlike engine.

In Persian, it is sometimes prefixed to a word, but more commonly it occurs disjoined; in which latter case it has the s maktūbī or mukhtafī annexed to it, thus ک, and being pronounced with kasr (.) it may be used in the following senses. 1. (کاف تعلیل or assigning cause) Because, for. 2. (کاف صله or کاف بیان) the relative pronoun) Who, which. 3. (کاف معرفه) conj. That. 4. (کاف عطف) And. 5. (کاف expressing purpose or intention) That, to. 6. (کاف مناجاة) Instantly. 7. (کاف استفهام) the interrogative pronoun) Who? what? which? 8. (کاف تفصیل) But even. 9. (کاف دعائيه) implying a prayer) God grant that. 10. (کاف ترديد) opposition or comparison) Or. 11. Whoever. 12. (expressing comparison) Than. 13. (کاف شرطيه) expressing a condition) If. 14. (کاف تشبيه) similitude) As, like.

Affixed to the end of words, in Persian, and the preceding letter sounded with fat'ha (َ), it forms diminutives or expressions of contempt; as مردک mar-dak, A little man, or one of no value; طفلک tiflak, A little child; اندک andak, A little (from اند any unknown number from three to nine): and, when thus applied, it may be termed کاف تصغير kāf-i taṣ-ghīr. In this way, too, it may be used as an expression of endearment; so مامک māmak, Dear little mother. And at the end of some words it seems redundant; as زلوت zūṭ for زلو A leech.

In Arabic, at the beginning of a word, and pronounced with fat'ha (َ), ک denotes similitude, as, like; so كالنقش في الحجر Like an engraving on stone: and, affixed to a word, it is the pronoun of the second person singular; so, الله معك God with thee.

In Sanskrit कु क ku is a prepositive particle, implying bad, ill, vile, little, mean; so कुभार्या ku-bhāryā, Bad wife; कुभाव ku-bhāv, Ill nature.

گ

- گ gāf, called گاف عجمی kāf-i-ajamī, the twenty-sixth letter of the Persian alphabet, does not occur in Arabic. Its sound is that of g in good. In Sanscrit, its corresponding letter is ग, and to represent the aspirated च, it is combined with h thus गे. In the notation of numbers by the letters of the alphabet, it stands for the same as گ. It is changed (1) into چ arabistically or otherwise; as گلزار for گلزار The flower of the pomegranate; لگام for لجام (2) into د as اورند for اورنگ A throne, pomp, &c. (3) into غ as غاو for گاو A cow; گلہ for گلہ A cotton or pellet ball: (4) into ق (arabistically) as سرگین for سرگین Cow-dung: (5) into خ as فرسخ for فرسخ A measure of length. It is, moreover, substituted for the silent h or hū-i-mukhtafī at the end of nouns, when the derivatives in ی and the plurals of men or animals are formed; as, دیوانگی Madness, and دیوانگان The mad, from دیوانہ. It may, also, be added to diminutives in گ as جامگ as جامگ or جامگک A little cup.

ل

ل lām, the twenty-third letter of the Arabic, and twenty-seventh of the Persian alphabet, corresponds to ल in Sanskrit. It is one of the eight dental letters in Arabic, and its sound is that of the English l. In the denotation of numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 30 : and, by way of abbreviation, it may represent the month شوال shawāl.

Its permutations are, 1. In Persian and Hindūstānī into ر and vice versa ; as, زرو zarū for زلو zalū, A leech ; بار for بال Hair ; دیوار for دیوال A wall ; تلوار for تروار A sword. 2. In Arabic, in the article, into م ;
 as, ليس من امبرصيام في امسفر laisa mina-m-birri-
-m-ṣiyāmu fi-m-safari, for ليس من البر الصيام في امسفر laisa mina-l-birri-ṣ-ṣiyāmu fi-s-safari, It is not a virtuous act to fast on a journey.

In Arabic it may be prefixed to a word, for various purposes : as, 1. Pronounced with the vowel fat'ha, and prefixed to the aorist of a verb, for تاکید Confirmation or asseveration ; so ليضرب layazribanna, Certainly he beats or will beat. 2. Pronounced with the vowel kasr, as the sign of the imperative (لام امر) so, ليضرب li-yaṣrib, Let him beat. 3. Pronounced with fat'ha, and prefixed to the aorist of a verb, it may be (لام حال) intended to restrict the meaning to the present tense ; as, اني ليحزنني annī la-yaḥzanunī, Verily he grieves me. 4. Pronounced with kasr, for اختصاص Appropriation : as لزيد li-zaidin, For, or belonging to Zaid. 5. Pronounced with kasr, for تعليل Final cause ; as, ضربته للتاديب zarabtu-hu-li-
-t-tādibi, I beat him to mend his manners. 6. Pronounced with kasr, by way of قسم Oath ; as, لله li-l-
-lāhi, By God. 7. Pronounced with kasr, to denote معاقبت Consequence ; as, لازم الشر للشقاوت lazama-
-sh-sharru li-sh-shaḥāwati, Evil actions are the necessary consequence of (or necessarily follow) a wicked disposition. And in some cases it appears redundant ; as, ردف لكم radifa la-kum or ردفكم radifa-kum, He mounted behind you.

م mīm, the twenty-fourth letter of the Arabic, and twenty-eighth of the Persian alphabet, corresponds to म in Sanskrit. It is one of the labial letters, its sound being that of the English m. When used to denote a number, according to the numerical arrangement of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for forty. It is compared by poets to the mouth; whence it has obtained the name of ميم مرادي mīm-i-murādī: and by way of abbreviation, it may signify the month muḥarram.

It is sometimes changed into ن; as, بام for بام A roof: and, at others, it is substituted for ن as, کچيم for کچين A quilted tunick worn in battle.

In Persian, affixed to verbs and names of qualities, it may be, 1. ميم متکلم mīm-i-mutakallim denoting the pronoun of the first person singular; in which case, م is always quiescent, except for some particular reason. This admits of four subdivisions.

(1.) Affixed to verbs, it is a pronoun indicating the speaker to be the agent; as آمدم āmadam, I came; خواهم ميگويم migoyam, I am speaking; خواهام گفتم khvāham guft, I will speak. The letter preceding is always maftūḥ or pronounced with fat'ḥa, if the agent be in the singular number; but, if it be plural, ي is inserted, and the preceding letter is sākin; as, آمديم āmadīm, We came.

(2.) ميم مفعول mīm-i-maf'ūl, signifying the same pronoun in the oblique case, or as the object of the verb. It is prefixed to the verb, either immediately, as زرم داد zar-am dād, He gave me gold; or, with the intervention of other words, as in this line of Ahlī:

يکت بوسه هرگز لب شيرين بري نداد

Yak bosa hargiz-am lab-i-shirin-bare nadād, for hargizam nadād. The lip of no beautiful maid has ever given me one kiss. In this sense it is also affixed to a verb. And, the letter preceding this mīm is always maftūḥ; except that, now and then, to preserve the measure of a verse, it is made quiescent; as in this line of Nizāmī:

کردي ز قصيده هاي چون در
دست و دهن تهيم را پر

Kardī zi ḡaṣida-hā'e chūn dur; dast o dahan-i tihī-m-rā pur. Thou hast filled my empty hands and mouth with elegies as with pearls.

(3.) مضاف اليه The pronoun in the genitive case: affixed to a noun; as دلم dil-am, My heart: but, it is sometimes separated from the noun to which it refers;

as, in this expression of Nazirī, گلم از دست بگیرید Take the rose from my hand.

- (4.) Having the meaning of "I am," affixed to nouns substantive and adjective; as, طفل نادانم tift-i-nādān-am, I am an ignorant child. When it follows the particles نه na and که ki, the z is changed into ی; thus نیم na-yam کی ki-yam. This m is rendered plural by prefixing ی, as کاملیم kāmil-im, We are perfect, &c.

In all these cases, if the m come after a هائی مختلفی (hā-i-mukhtafī) or the pronoun تو, a hamza-e-maftūh is introduced to prevent the juxtaposition of two quiescent letters; as, رفته ام rafta am, I am gone: but if it be a هائی ملفوظی (hā-i-malfūzī) or hā that is pronounced, it has the same vowel as any other letter would have in the same situation; as, روز سیاهم roz-i-siyāh-am, My black or unlucky day.

2. The second use of mim, as distinguished by oriental grammarians, may be considered as hardly different from the former. It stands for خود when that word itself represents the pronoun of the first person singular; as, بر اسبم سوارم bar aspam suwāram, I am mounted on my own horse.
3. Being affixed to the cardinal numbers, it forms the ordinals, as دوم Second, سوم Third, &c., from دو and سه.
4. It forms the feminine of certain nouns; as, بیگم A princess, from بیگ beg; خانم A lady, from خان khān.
5. Redundant; as, بخانه خودم میروم ba-khāna-i-khud-am mirawam (for bakhāna-i-khud), I am going to my own house.
6. Prohibitive, prefixed to the imperative of a verb; as, مده ma-dih, Give not: مزنج ma-ranj, Trouble not.
7. Deprecative, prefixed instead of the prohibitive ن to the third person of the imperative, when it has been converted into the precative form by the insertion of ا; as, مرساد ma-rasād, God grant that he may not arrive.

In Arabic, m mim at the beginning of a word may be used to denote:

1. The infinitive called مصدر میمی maṣdar mīm-i; in which case, it is sometimes pronounced with fat'ha, and at other times with zamm; as, مصلحت maṣlaḥat, Advice; مصاحبت muṣāḥabat, Companionship.
 2. The participle active, when it is pronounced with the vowel zamm; as, منجم munajjim, An astrologer; مستفسر mustafsir, A questioner.
 3. The participle passive, when it is pronounced either with fat'ha; as, مضمون mazmūn, Contained, comprehended; مطلوب maṭlūb, Called, desired: or with zamm; as, منور munauwar, Enlightened.
 4. The noun of time and place (ظرف), when it is in some cases pronounced with fat'ha; as, مغرب maghrib, The place of (sun) setting, the west: and, in other cases, with zamm; as, مخرج mukhraj, The place of expelling.
 5. The name of instrument (اسم آله), when it is sounded with kasr; as, میزان mizān, The instrument of weighing, a balance: مفتاح miftāḥ, The instrument of opening, a key.

ن nūn, The twenty-fifth letter of the Arabic and twenty-ninth of the Persian alphabet, corresponds to न in Sanskrit. It is one of the dental letters, and has the sound of the English n with the following exceptions. 1. When it is quiescent in the middle or end of a word, and follows a madda or simple long vowel, it has a very slight nasal sound ; as, in زبون Bad, زمان Time, زمین The earth, ماندن To remain : this is called نون غنة nūn-i-ghunna. If, however, the word at the end of which it occurs be so placed in composition that the ن become moveable by izāfat, it ceases to be nasal and resumes its original sound as a dental letter. 2. When it precedes ب or پ it has the sound of m ; as, in منبر mimbar, A pulpit ; سمنپت sampat, Riches. 3. Before ک or گ it assumes a nasal sound similar to that which the English n has before the corresponding letters in the words song, sunk, as, in انگاشتن angāshtan, To suppose ; لنکا lankā. 4. In Arabic, when it precedes ر و م ل or ي it takes the sound of the following letter ; as, من رب mirrabīn, From the Lord. من لیل mil-lailīn, From the night ; من مقام mim-makāmīn, From the place ; من وراهم miw-warā'ihim, After them ; من یشاء mai-yashā'u, Whoever desires. In the application of the Arabic letters to denote numbers, it stands for 50. In almanacks it signifies the conjunct aspect of the stars.

It is sometimes substituted for م : see under م. And it is occasionally changed into م as بنام banām, for بنان banān, The tips of the fingers ; or, into ي as دینار dinār, A gold coin ; or, into ل as اصیل asīlāl, plur. of اصل The evening.

In the conjugation of some irregular Persian verbs, ر and س of the preterite are changed into ن to form the present ; as, کند from کرد, بندد from بست : and, in some instances this letter is inserted between those of the preterite ; as, زند from زد. Its insertion is also used to form the plural ; as, زندند and the participle active ; as, زنده Beating. Added to the third person singular of the preterite it forms the infinitive ; as داشت from داشتن .

In Persian, ن may be, 1. An adverb of negation, either prefixed to another word or used separately ; but when the latter is the case, hū-ī-makhfi is subjoined to it ; which in verse is often changed into may'hul, to lengthen the line. The older poets sometimes cut off the h and join the ن with the following word, for the sake of the measure ; as, in this example of Nizāmī :—

از خیمه برون دويد بخود
نزدام هراس داشت نرزد

Az khaima birūn dawīd be-khud, naz-dām hirās dāsht naz-dad ; for na az dām, and na az dad. He rushed distractedly from his tent, fearing neither the snare nor the wild beasts. When it is joined with another word, the addition of h or y is unnecessary ; as, نگفت na-guft. 2. With alif prefixed, it may be added to the root of a verb to form the participle called حالیه, as افتان و خیزان Falling and rising ; and, the plural of nouns, as مردمان Men. 3. Affixed to a word, it may serve to denote connexion or relation ; as ریمین rimin, Of or relating to pus, purulent, from جوش jaushan, Chain-armour, from جوش A ring or link of a chain.

In Arabic, ن called nūn-i-takīd, may be annexed to the aorist of a verb to denote certainty or asseveration : in which case, it may be either (خفیفه) simple, or (ثقیله) double, as explained in all treatises on Arabic grammar.

In Sanskrit, न is a separate negative particle. नि (for निः or निर) or न pronounced with kasr is sometimes prefixed to words to denote negation ; as, in, नर् ni-dar, Fearless. And, in the Braj dialect, न or नि न or नि is added to substantives to form plurals in the inflection ; as, फलन phalan, Fruits, from फल ; पुत्रनि कौ putrani-kau, To sons. Or, in the Braj dialect as well as in the Dakhnī, नि न ni may be the same as ني ne before the past tenses of transitive verbs.

s. नि ni, prep. In, into, within, on, upon. The reverse of निर् nir.

wāw or wā'o, the twenty-sixth letter of the Arabic and thirtieth of the Persian alphabet, corresponds to व in Sanskrit. When used to denote a number, according to the Arabs, it stands for six. In ephemerides it represents Friday and the sign Libra.

This letter is sometimes a consonant; when it is one of the labial letters, having the sound of the English w or v. It is also one of the hurūf-i-illat, or weak letters; when it may serve with the vowel zamm or fat'ha, conveyed by the preceding consonant, to denote the different sounds of o, ū, and au. As the و is homogenous with zamm, if the former is quiescent and immediately following the latter, the sound of zamm is only prolonged by it, and the result is a simple long vowel. This vowel may have the power of either o or ū: when it has that of the first, the و is termed maj'hūl (unknown, concealed); either, because it does not occur in the Arabic language, or because the sound of zamm is here obscured by an admixture of that of fat'ha: it is, also, called واو فارسی and واو عجمی. And when it has the power of ū, it is termed mā'rūf (known); from its occurring in Arabic and exhibiting the full sound of zamm. When the quiescent و follows a letter having the vowel fat'ha, the diphthong au is formed, and the و is then called واو ساکن ما قبل مفتوح. After a kasr it never occurs.

In some cases و though written, is not pronounced. Thus (1) in the words دو Two, تو Thou, چو When, &c. the sounds are simply those of zamm without prolongation; as, in this line of Nizāmī, چو تو گر کسی chu to gar kase bāshad, ān-ham tu'i, where the first syllable is short. This is called واو wāw-i-bayān-i-zamma. (2) After خ which has the vowel fat'ha, a و is often inserted, which is not sounded, but yet gives to the preceding short vowel a mixture of zamm. From its being passed over in pronunciation, this is called واو معدوله wāw-i-mā'dūla: and, from its bestowing a savour, as it were, of zamm, it has the name of واو اشمام ضمه wāw-i-ishmām-i-zamma. This و precedes either زرد khwāb, Sleep; خود khwad, Self; خورد khward, Little; خوزم khwazm, Vapour; خوست khvast, An island; خوش khwash, Glad; آخون ākhwan, A schoolmaster; خوخله khwahla, Crooked; خویله khwela, A fool. That the خ in these instances has the vowel fat'ha, appears from these verses of Sa'dī,

چار طبع مخالف و سرکش
 پنج روزی بوند باهم خوش

Chār ṭab-i-mukhālif o sarkash; panj roze buwand bāham khwash.

ساخت هجرانم ز خواب و خور جدا
 کس مبادا یا رب از دلبر جدا

Sākht hijrānam zi khwāb o khwar judā; kas mabādā, yā rabb! az dilbar judā. The author of the Farhang Rashīdī says, that the خ in these words has always fat'ha; but, in the following instance, it occurs with zamm. Jāmī in the poem of Yūsuf Zulaikha says,

ز جوی شهر یاری آب خورده
 ز سرو جوی یاری آب برده

Zi jū-i-shahryārī āb khurda, zi sarw-i-joebārī āb burda. In a few instances the خ has the vowel kasr, as خویش khwesh, and خویشتن khwesh-tan.

It is changed. 1. Into ا as قال kāla for قوال kawala, He spoke. 2. Into ا تلج utluj for اولج wluj, Enter thou. 3. Into م as فم for فم The mouth. 4. Into ن as صناعی sanā'i for صناعی sanā'i, An inhabitant of Sanā. 4. Into ه (hamza); as, قایل kā'il, for قاول kāwil, Speaking. 6. Into ی as ایقاد ikād, for اوقاد ivkād, Lighting a fire. 7. Into ب as نبدن nabish- tan, for نوشتن nawishtan, To write. 8. Into ف f as يافه yāfa, for يافه yāwa, Nonsense. 9. Into پ p as پام pām, for وام wām, Debt, colour, &c.

In Arabic it may be used to denote an oath; as والله wa-l-lāhi, By God.

In Persian, it may serve, 1. as a contraction of او āu as گفتم warā guftam, for اورا گفتم orā guftam, I told him. 2. Annexed to nouns, to form diminutives; as, شيخو shaiḥh-ū, A little old man, from شيخ shaiḥh; پسر و pīsrū, A little boy, from پسر pīsar. In this manner it is used also to express endearment and compassion. 3. To denote congruity or suitableness (ملازمت); as,

تو و حلوا و مزعفر من و خرما و عدس

To o ḥalwā o muzāfar, man o khurmā o ādas. Sweetmeats and food dressed with saffron are suitable to you; dates and pulse are fit for me. And it is sometimes redundant, when it is most frequently prefixed to یا ya or لیکن likin; though it is also thus used in the middle of words; as تنومند tan-o-mand for تنمند Large, corpulent.

In Arabic and Persian, it may be a conjunction in the sense of 1. And. 2. With (implying society, connexion, partnership); as, استوا الماء والخشب The water is equal with the wood. 3. Instantaneity or synchronism; as, رفت آن شوخ و خراب است ز هجران raft ān shokh o kharāb ast zi hijrān karam, That wanton departed, and I was instantly destroyed by her absence. 4. Tazāḥhub, A kind of interrogative, implying negation; as,

از تو برگیرم و دل با دگری یار کنم
ای بفرمان تو صد دل من و اینکار کنم

Az to bar-gīram o dīl bū digare yār kunam? ai ba-farmān-i-to šad dīl! mān o inkār kunam? Shall I take my heart from thee and bestow it on another? Oh thou at whose disposal are a hundred hearts! am I capable of such an act?

In Hindī, affixed to words, the wāw-i-mā rūf may, like the yā-e-mā rūf, denote identity, peculiarity, &c. as سوو so-ū, Exactly he; دوو do-ū, The very two, both. In the Dakhnī dialect, the و (wa or o) is sometimes written alone for او o or وو wo, That, he, she, it, they, those. And in words borrowed or derived from the Sanskrit the letter व v is frequently changed to ब b.
